Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 04 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain will clear during the afternoon.

Today:
Spells of rain will continue in northern parts during the morning, with a risk of turning to snow over Cumbria. These will ease in the afternoon leaving many parts dry, and the south seeing the best of any bright spells. Maximum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloud moving in from the south will cause skies to become rather cloudy through the night, with patchy rain affecting many parts. Breezy in the north. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Friday:
Mostly dry in the south but the north will see patchy rain, possibly falling as snow over the north Pennines. Feeling colder. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Cold and largely dry on Saturday although wintry showers are possible. Turning even colder with more frequent snow showers on Sunday and Monday, bringing a risk of ice. Bitter winds.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.